Dear Conference Attendees:

On behalf of the University of Alaska System, welcome to the Fourth International Project Management Conference held here at our largest UA campus, the University of Alaska Anchorage.

The UAA Engineering, Science and Project Management Department is hosting this conference because they know the importance of the ProMAC 2008 forum for exchanging ideas, sharing innovative solutions and exploring techniques that will affect project management for years into the future. There are hundreds of you attending this conference, from Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Australia, Canada, Iran, Ireland, Israel, Singapore, Indonesia, other states and of course, Alaska. The lineup of plenary speakers alone, from the companies Alaska Communications Systems, Arctic Slope Regional Corp. Energy Services, ConocoPhillips, Denali – The Alaska Gas Pipeline, Fujitsu Limited, Korea Hydro & Nuclear Power Co. Ltd., and NTT Data Corp is sure to draw a crowd eager to learn from such wisdom and experience.

I want to thank the corporate sponsors, media partners Project Management Institute (PMI) and PMForum, the Alaska PMI Chapter, the International Society of Project Management and UAA for all the hard work involved in coordinating a conference of this magnitude. Welcome to Anchorage, Alaska, and our beautiful UAA campus.

Sincerely,
