Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA)

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) of 1974, as amended, is a Federal law designed to:

1. Protect the privacy of education records.
2. Establish the right of students to inspect and review their education records.
3. Provide guidelines for the correction of inaccurate or misleading data through informal and formal hearings.

Eligible students also have the right to file complaints with the FERPA Office concerning alleged failures by the institution to comply with the Act.

Under FERPA, the student must provide written consent before the university discloses personally identifiable information from the student's education records. School officials with legitimate educational interests may review personally identifiable information without consent when they have a legitimate educational interest.

Definitions:

- An "eligible" student under FERPA is any student who attends a postsecondary institution, regardless of age.
- "School officials" include persons employed by the university.
- A "legitimate educational interest" means that the official needs to review an education record in order to fulfill his or her professional responsibilities for the university.

All employees are required to obtain FERPA certification before gaining access to the student database (Banner and related tools such as Toad, QMenu and QAdhoc), OnBase or DegreeWorks. Employees are strongly encouraged to renew certification yearly to remain up-to-date. Online training and certification can be found in UAOnline under Employee Services.

To report a possible FERPA violation, or for clarification or additional information, please contact the Office of the Registrar at 907-786-1560.

I have read and fully understand the rules printed on this form and shall comply with them. I understand that violation of FERPA may result in disciplinary action up to and including the termination of my employment and may also include prosecution under federal and state law.
