

The Superior Group, Inc.

The Superior Group, Inc., (formerly known as Superior Plumbing & Heating, Inc.) began with a crew of two installing commercial and residential heating conversion systems when Anchorage made the switch from oil to natural gas in the mid-1960s.

Backed with the success of this operation, they moved into new construction in Anchorage, and later expanded into the Bush as well. They added sheet metal fabrication to their line of services, including their own sheet metal shop.

Then, The Superior Group, Inc. began to provide in-house design for the systems they bid and install. They continue to make sure the systems keep working long after they install them with Superior Mechanical Service, a LINC contractor. Recently, they added another company to their group, Haakenson Electric, to include a complete efficient electrical system as part of their package for their clients.

Today, The Superior Group, Inc. serves general contractors and building owners as a full-service mechanical and electrical contractor, whose work is backed by their long-standing quality and experience.
