She graduated from the University of California, Berkeley, in 1938 and became an executive with Girl Scouts of America. In 1953, Mrs. Hedla came to Alaska as the publicist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture Station in Palmer. On May 26, 1956, she married George Hedla at Louise Kellogg's Spring Creek Farm.

In addition to being a wife and mother, Mrs. Hedla was considered a master gardener. She shared her talent by writing a newspaper column for nine years, contributing articles to national horticulture magazines, writing and publishing the fourth edition of The Alaska Gardener's Handbook, and writing stories for Sunday School publications. She also enjoyed traveling worldwide with her late husband to visit gardens. She loved to entertain and was a friend to many.

She is survived by her daughter, Margaret Stanley; and granddaughter, Larissa Stanley of Whitehorse, Yukon; and grandson, Garrett Ennis of Anchorage. To honor her husband, Ms. Hedla left a generous bequest to the University of Alaska Anchorage.
