INTRODUCTION

The University of Alaska Anchorage (UAA) is a comprehensive, open access, Community-connected, public university that is committed to meeting students where they are and supporting them to achieve their personal and professional goals. Educating approximately 19,000 students annually in a region covering nearly 85,000 square miles, UAA offers many entry points, delivering a broad range of in-person and remote programming from its five campuses and extended sites.

UAA serves traditional (18–24) and nontraditional (25+) age students; first-time, returning, and transfer students; and working professionals. The majority of UAA students are Alaska residents, and most commute to class and attend part-time. UAA's extraordinary graduates, having earned top-notch credentials that meet community needs and contribute to the state's workforce development goals, go on to make significant contributions to their professions, communities, the state, and beyond.

UAA's outstanding faculty, high-quality programs, long-standing focus on student success, commitment to equity and inclusion, and unique location are the institution's hallmarks. UAA strives to be worthy of its location on the ancestral lands of the Dena'ina, Ahtna, Alutiiq/Sugpiaq, and Eyak/dAXunhyuu Peoples, and acknowledges its obligation to the Indigenous people who share these lands with the university.

The University of Alaska Anchorage has been accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities (NWCCU) since 1974. This single accreditation status applies to all UAA campuses, including Anchorage, Kenai Peninsula College, Kodiak College, Matanuska-Susitna College, and Prince William Sound College, as well as their extended sites.

UAA is classified by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching as a public Master's Colleges & Universities: Larger Programs, with a special classification for Community Engagement. UAA has been named to the 2021-2022 Military Friendly Schools list, the 13th consecutive year by Victory Media.

UAA's mission is to transform lives through teaching, research, community engagement, and creative expression. UAA's strategic plan UAA 2025 has five aspirations, and these aspirations provide the framework by which the institution delivers these transformational experiences and by which it measures institutional effectiveness. These aspirations are intentionally integrative, and progress on one aspiration can also affect progress on the others. The five aspirations are: 1. We put students first. 2. We create a culture of equity and inclusion by embracing our diversity. 3. We embrace our role as a trusted and respected community partner. 4. We positively impact communities and the world through innovation. 5. We accelerate excellence through continuous improvement.
