

UAA School of Education Specialized Accreditations

Specialized Accreditation

In 2005 the UAA College of Education received accreditation from the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE). Accreditation was renewed in 2010.

Currently, the UAA School of Education advanced-level programs are accredited under the NCATE legacy standards. In March of 2021, the School of Education participated in a review by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP). The following advanced-level programs were reviewed:

Educational Leadership, M.Ed.
Educational Leadership, Graduate Certificate
Language Education, Graduate Certificate
Special Education, Graduate Certificate

Specialized Professional Associations (SPAs) nationally recognize each of the programs:

Educational Leadership programs - Educational Leadership Constituent Council (ELCC)

Language Education - Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL)

Special Education – Council for Exceptional Children (CEC)

In addition to the accreditation of the advanced-level programs, the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC) accredits the Associate of Applied Science in Early Childhood Education.
